

The Case for Space Development

August 26, 2020 Lamont Colucci

Related Categories: Energy Security; International Economics and Trade; Military Innovation; Science and Technology; SPACE; NASA

The Trump administration's creation, in late 2019, of the U.S. Space Force, as a free-standing branch of the American armed forces and concurrently the reestablishment of the U.S. Space Command, has brought new and much-needed attention to what is a critical emerging domain: space. What remains lacking, however, is a broader strategy to properly frame and articulate American priorities in the space domain, and to guide U.S. conduct within it...