Kelli Kennedy

JUNIOR FELLOW

Kelli Kennedy joined the American Foreign Policy Council as a Junior Fellow in January 2019. She is a graduate of the LBJ School of Public Affairs (MGPS) at The University of Texas at Austin, where she focused on security and diplomacy in Northeast Asia. Prior to graduate school she lived in South Korea and is fluent in Korean. Kelli’s research interests include the Korean Peninsula, Nuclear Energy, and Nonproliferation. Her commentary has appeared in The Daily Caller, The Hill, The National Interest and The Diplomat.

RELATED PUBLICATIONS

November 26, 2019 | ARTICLE

China is the United States’s North Korea problem

August 17, 2019 | ARTICLE

Washington needs to help Japan, South Korea find a way forward