AFPC Senior Vice President Ilan Berman interviewed by Politico regarding U.S. foreign policy and the 2020 election.

"In the long run, however, by creating certain "facts on the ground," in the argot of the peace process, Trump may have dramatically redrawn the boundaries of politically acceptable terms for a U.S. administration — Democratic or Republican — to endorse if it wades into the conflict.

"It'll change realities on the ground in a way that's going to be harder to un-ring that bell," said Ilan Berman, senior vice president of the conservative American Foreign Policy Council." Read the full article.
