

Emily Milliken

JUNIOR FELLOW

Emily Milliken joined AFPC as a Junior Fellow in January 2021. A former AFPC research intern, Emily also serves as Middle East Director at Askari Associates, LLC, where using open-source analysis she produces a daily intelligence report for a defense clientele. She is proficient in Arabic and has conducted research on the Middle East, the Sahel, Turkish foreign policy, and Islamic extremism.

Emily is second-year MA student at Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS) concentrating in Middle East Studies and focusing on Islamic extremism in the region. Prior to SAIS, Emily graduated from Notre Dame of Maryland University with a BA in Political Science and studied abroad at the University of Jordan in Amman.

afpc@afpc.org

202-543-1006

AREAS OF EXPERTISE

IRAN INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

MIDDLE EAST POLITICS AND SECURITY

TERRORISM AND RADICAL ISLAM

AFFILIATED PROGRAMS

Countering Islamic Extremism Project

Middle East Program

RELATED NEWS & EVENTS

October 13, 2021 | Media

AFPC's Emily Milliken Moderates a Turkish Heritage Organization Panel: "Developments in Syria and the Continued Crisis: What's Next?"

RELATED PUBLICATIONS

March 15, 2023 | ARTICLE

A Deepening Security Dilemma In Jordan

December 7, 2021 | ARTICLE

ISIS has Uganda, and Central Africa, in its sights

September 8, 2021 | ARTICLE

Is ISIS Making a Comeback in Libya?

July 13, 2021 | ARTICLE

Turkey's Ties To Jihadist Groups Run Deep

© 2023 - American Foreign Policy Council